CONCERNING THE EXHIBITION

In cooperating with the Bethel Inn Exhibition this season, the Salmagundi Club members have introduced a variation in the type of exhibits presented for your interest and enjoyment. A larger number of smaller pictures are shown than in previous years. An exhibition of small paintings known as the Thumb Box show has been an annual event and for years has proved one of the most popular shows of the Club's winter season.

Some of our newer and less known members are contributing as well as those who have been consistent exhibitors here. In the National Academy of Design group are the well known names of: Junius Allen, Roy Brown (also president of the American Water Color Society), John Costigan, Walter Biggs, Frederick Detwiller, Floyd Gahman, Gordon Grant, Robert Ryland, Frederic Whitaker, George Wright, Stow Wengenroth and J. Scott Williams. These artists have won numerous prizes and awards.

Among those who have distinguished themselves in the strongly developing field of water color paintings are Roy Brown, Theodore Kautsky, Walter Biggs, Harry De Maine, Syd Browne, Gordon Grant, E. Hubert Deines and Frederic Whitaker. The National Academy of Design now recognizes this medium and some of the above mentioned artists are Academicians in this water color distinction class.

Two of the exhibitors have recently returned from War Service, Floyd Gahman and Syd Browne. Another item of interest may be found in the four paintings of Gustave Cimiotti who has just returned East after two years amid the picturesque settings of New Mexico and California. He is now chairman of the Salmagundi Club Art Committee.

Frederick Detwiller has just completed his term of office as President of the Club, introduces a new note with two serigraph prints. These are done in the newer silk screen process now used by the print makers. Among the prints shown, Stow Wengenroth's splendid prints are the result of his stay on Monhegan Island, Maine last summer. George Wright has a sensitive appreciation of the Quebec, Canada country side.

Among the new exhibitors of the print section are Frederick Polley, a prominent newspaper illustrator of Indianapolis. Morris Hobbs, who lives in New Orleans includes in his activities, murals, wood carving, architectural designs, exterior and interiors. Like most of our etchers, he is a member of the Society of American Etching Etchers as well as an officer

Cornelius Van Ness is painting as well. Other new view of New York City from Gordon Grant's special prints of fishing and sailing of the sea.

New also on our list is gives us a view of the Hudson Allied Artists of America, Toney are men of diversified entertainments for which

Paul Berdinier is a well

New also to the Bethel a vigorous painter of individual James and Carl Blenner have by flower pieces. Blenner Lichtenauer and J. Scott Williams

James Bonnar, who has exhibition again this year.

The many scenes of the sons are a never ending point of view, some graceful the life about us.

Cornelius Van Ness is a new name this year. He is experienced in marine painting as well. Other new exhibitors are Max Keuhne, with his interesting view of New York City from Weehawken, New Jersey; and John Bradshaw.
Gordon Grant's special painting ground is Gloucester, Massachusetts. His prints of fishing and sailing scenes have long been famous as are his paintings of the sea.

New also on our list is George Beline, portrait and figure painter, who gives us a view of the Hudson in winter. Howard Spencer is president of the Allied Artists of America, Jay Weaver, Edward Leonard and Lawrence D.
Toney are men of diversified gifts and have contributed in the unusual series of entertainments for which the Salmagundi is famous.

Paul Berdinier is a well known art director as well as painter.

New also to the Bethel Inn Exhibition are the names of Francis Kughler, a vigorous painter of individuality, Robert Lawrence and James Scott. John James and Carl Blenner have exhibited at the Inn before; both are represented by flower pieces. Blenner is well known for his flower pieces. J. Mortimer Lichtenauer and J. Scott Williams are well known as mural painters.

James Bonnar, who decorated the dining rooms of the Inn, joins the exhibition again this year. His work has always been popular.

The many scenes of this fair land of ours in their various moods and seasons are a never ending interest to the artists. They all have an individual point of view, some graceful, some distinguished, with the records of color of the life about us.
